

“fun, easy reading filled with well hidden secrets reminiscent of the Miss Marple Series by Agatha Christie” -- Yolanda Renee, Host of Renee’s Book Talk

Regan McHenry is a Santa Cruz real estate agent whose work puts her in the midst of mystery, mayhem, and even murder. The amateur sleuth uses techniques she’s learned during her career and skills she’s honed as a keen observer of human nature to solve crimes. She just doesn’t always figure things out soon enough to stay out of trouble.

Regan’s business on the upper west side of town has been putting her so close to so many deaths, her associates have started calling her “the grim reaperette”.

The last death in the neighborhood is ruled accidental, but she’s convinced it’s murder. Regan even thinks she knows who committed the crime. Now she has to unravel past secrets to find proof before anyone will take her seriously. And the problem is, she doesn’t want to be right.

“the puzzles are fun to solve” -- Santa Cruz Sentinel

“I particularly love the ending!” -- Pat Pfremer, private investigator

“cliff-hanging mystery” -- Realtor Magazine

“smart, funny mysteries” – San Francisco Examiner.com